

Lois was in the field of education and finished her career as teaching Principal of southern California's last one-room school. She was a composer and playwright who taught students family values, history, and foods of yesteryear through her toe tapping musicals.

A student who has excelled in the "fine arts" (i.e., music, art, dance, theater) and is planning to use those talents in the field of education or Culinary Arts.